

Author Information

When submitting your abstract, please help this process by selecting one of the topic areas of the conference that best matches your research work.

Abstract Preparation

Authors are invited to submit a ONE Page Abstract, reporting original research of theoretical or applied nature using the online mode. Abstracts should be not more than one page of text and figures in length. The initial submission should explicitly include the primary results and findings, emphasizing new advances, theories and/or applications so that the Technical Program Committee will be able to understand the originality and the significance of the work. A submission implies a willingness to register and present the work, if the paper is accepted for presentation at the conference.

Abstracts accepted by the Conference Technical Program Committee are expected to register for the conference and present their work, and are strongly encouraged to submit a final paper for the Conference Proceedings. Authors must present the work at the conference in the specified format (talk and/or poster), if they wish to publish a final paper in the Conference Proceedings.

The final papers must be at least FOUR pages long. There is no reasonable restriction on maximum length of the final paper, though the Conference editors reserve judgement on publication. Authors may re-submit their original abstract as their final paper submission, if it is at least FOUR pages in length (shorter submissions will not be published). Final paper submissions will be reviewed with automated tools for plagiarism, which includes check against self-similarity to the author's previously published work.
