Message from the Principal

Sometime in the second week of March 2020, the state governments across the country began shutting down schools and colleges temporarily as a measure to contain the spread of the novel coronavirus. It's 2 years now since the corona struck us. Thanks to the vaccination drive which has slowed down the spread of this deadly virus. It was a crucial time for the education sector as university and board examinations, school admissions, entrance tests of various universities and competitive examinations were all held during this period.

With no immediate solution to stop the outbreak of the pandemic, colleges remained closed for months, which affected the learners, with far-reaching economic and social impact.

COVID-19 has turned out to be the most formidable threat ever confronted our planet. It is impacting human thought and life as nothing before. Human race has faced many challenges in the past and has always come out of it - much stronger and better. It helped us to understand priorities, focus on what was important.

We have seen a suffering humanity, experienced their pain and struggles, empathized and reached out to them in various forms as corona crusaders. We have seen a world that is changing; there is more accepting of the other, more thoughtful and loving gestures as each one thinks of the other. In the midst of all this suffering and illness, hunger and fear there were several positive stories that emerged of hope and resilience, of courage and selflessness, of availability and generosity, of sacrifice and kindness and much more. This pandemic on one hand caused great suffering and pain to humanity as a whole, on the other hand it gave us many opportunities to come out as a strong human family.

Though the lockdown had brought everything to a standstill, we at Patna women's college moved forward quickly and responded to the threat so that our students could continue their progress in terms of their learning outcomes. We had come out with various initiatives to respond to the COVID-19 challenge so that the delay in our academic schedule is minimized without impacting the studies of our students. We have not left any stone unturned in pursuing academic excellence through this pandemic. I remain grateful to all our staff, the parents and well-wishers for their support and cooperation during this pandemic.

It gives me great joy to introduce this Magazine-a great way to be innovative and creative in order to communicate effectively. As we march ahead with fresh enthusiasm, let the pages of this magazine unfold to you the hopes and resilience of all the stakeholders of this great institution who have contributed much to society during these challenging times.

Message from the Vice Principal

The years 2020 and 2021 stunned humanity and left us all in distress and despair. But through it all we experienced that humanity in each of us was alive. There were also many lessons to be learnt during this pandemic and for me personally it was an opportunity to face the challenges we encountered each day with resilience and turn them all into opportunities. During this pandemic, we realized that we had to act quickly to counter these challenges, positively. We had the support of all our staff teaching and non - teaching. We were all ready to leap into the unknown. We experienced that 'God alone suffices' in all our thinking and acting. There was a lot of reflection, discussion and action on 'what', 'where', 'how', and 'who'. We found answer to all our questions, with the support of all our stakeholders. We quickly adapted ourselves to the new normal. We equipped ourselves for online/virtual teaching-learning. Everyone marveled at the creative and innovative ideas of the teachers and students. All the events which would be held during the normal times, were conducted virtually, with more enthusiasm and interaction. We could say to ourselves 'All is Well'. In the midst of all the turbulence, there was a calmness that lay within each of us, for we knew the Divine Sailor would take us all safely through the raging waters.

Besides the academic activities, there were infrastructure developments activities, which gave a new look to the college. A new Mezzanine floor was created in the central Library, a roof top study hall was constructed for the students and the gymnasium was re-modelled. The college also participated in the exchange programme with the collaborative HEIs.

We the Management, staff and students walked hand in hand, stood by the suffering humanity, reached out to the widows, Transgender community, the daily wage earners, the orphanages, and those families affected by Covid 19 in all possible ways and faced the challenges together. Herein lies our strength.

We went through an extraordinary situation emerging out of the global pandemic and the consequent lockdowns. With the unprecedented lockdown the life came to an abrupt halt. The implications of the pandemic have been manifold – from economy to society and from business to academics – no sector remained unaffected from the fury of the fast-spreading virulent virus and its deadly variants. The academic world suffered badly with the closure of institutions, suspension of classes and postponement of examinations. And to make the things worse, the second phase of COVID brought series of miseries and deaths. We lost so many near and dear ones.

It was such a state of panic and trauma that I never ever imagined in my distant dreams. At one time I stood standstill amid darkness all around. But at the same time the pandemic taught me the power of resilience. Simply sitting idle in anxiety was of no help. I learned to cope and combat the crisis. It was an uphill task – on one hand nursing the corona patients in the family and on the other struggling with the technological innovations of the e-learning mechanism. This was the new normal and I feel satisfied that the pandemic taught me so many new things. Working on e-platforms, teaching - learning on LMS, learning to work on the modern gadgets like digital pen tablet – these were my takeaways from the hard times. I learned from my alma mater and my coveted work place PWC to be always wise and serve the mankind with sincerity in whatever capacity you have.

I am proud to be a part of the 'Corona Crusade' undertaken by our institution and I congratulate all of the 'Crusaders' for their enthusiastic endeavour, sincere efforts and hard work.

Brian Herbert had rightly said that the capacity to learn is a gift; the ability to learn is a skill and the willingness to learn is a choice. The pandemic unleashed by the Covid-19 virus, transformed the teaching experience for me completely and ushered us all to the classroom of the future.

With the unprecedented lockdowns brought upon by the pandemic, online learning replaced in-person learning in just a matter of weeks. With limited exposure to e-learning methods in the past, I embarked on a journey to develop my technological skills with full rigour. Technological upskilling started with familiarizing with the video conferencing platform, Zoom and the e-learning software ecosystem.

Arranging classes on Zoom, making short videos of my lectures and disseminating them to my students through social media as well as attending webinars and training programmes to learn effective e-learning methods became an integral part of my life. In a short period of time, I found immense improvement in my technological skills.

Still the path to online teaching was full of challenges. The main challenge was to reach the students living in remote areas without proper internet connectivity. How could they participate and learn? Also, teaching the students on Zoom obliterated my ability to monitor them and many times it felt like teaching a void. It indeed was a transformative challenge for the students as well as the teachers which also impacted proper assessment through assignments on the online platform.

Keeping in mind that these were unprecedented times and the challenges needed to be met with, I worked hard with my colleagues to make the classes as interactive as possible through more video presentations, online quizzes and seminars related to the subjects. Whenever the situation permitted, I also tried to organize both offline and online classes. The pandemic did give a meaning to "phygital learning" which perhaps could be the new normal in the post-pandemic world.

It has been rightly said by Friedrich Nietzsche that the doer alone learneth. I learnt a number of new things and realized that change is the end result of all true learning.

Over the last two years, the COVID-19 pandemic has caused much pain and distress. The unimaginable change in our environment led to many sorrowful moments. March 2020 will forever be known in the education community as the month when almost all the schools and colleges of the world shut their doors.

In response to the COVID-19, the teachers were required to shift gears immediately in response needs of the students; and they literally responded overnight to teach in new modalities. There is no doubt that we teachers upgraded our levels of imparting education and rose to the occasion; with accessing online platforms and preparing e-contents. Working from home in front of our laptops with chart paper taped to the refrigerator was a difficult phase indeed. Some of us were even busier than before. All of this took place while trying to simultaneously instruct our own family who were at home and in much emotional distress due to people falling sick all around and many of our near and dear ones leaving this world. In fact, as a result of COVID-19 the true importance of teachers and their work has come to forefront of Society.

At a time when the pandemic was testing the resilience of people, many good Samaritans came forward to help fellow residents in crisis. Me and my daughter Kritika Ramya, a Professor at a private University, supplied food to 100 Covid positive patients at their doorsteps every day. While I cooked the food, my daughter helped in packing. I wanted to help as many people as I could. My daughter used different social media platforms to get in touch with people in need. Several groups of volunteers also approached us for food packets. We continued our efforts in reaching out to the maximum number of people in need. We were focusing on elderly patients whose children were not staying with them. We had a chain of volunteers who collected food from my house and deliver it to places covering all over Patna while maintaining contactless delivery. This act of reaching out provided me much satisfaction and peace.

This was a testing time for all of us and I hope this never comes back. We pray to almighty that our planet will be a happy place to coexist in future.

In the COVID-19 era, technology plays a crucial role. In this new world of social distancing, higher education has become completely virtual. The COVID-19 pandemic confronted most institutions with a sudden and unprepared shift towards online teaching and learning.

One positive outcome of this era is the acceleration in the adoption of Digital Technologies for the virtual classes. Now “virtual” is the new “Normal”. Though this transition has not been easy for all, the students, teachers and the administration. The main factors that affected the switching to online teaching methods were lacking technical infrastructure and prior experience.

The world of higher education responded innovatively and rapidly to the crises as it emerged. COVID-19 has struck our education system like a lightning bolt and shaken it to its core.

In developing countries like India online education was not very common, the pandemic transformed the conventional chalk-talk teaching model to one driven by technology.

Although this pandemic has been a challenging time, teachers and administration of different institutes discovered the amazing activities like live game like quiz to engage students and on screen writing tablets that helped teachers innovate their course to more interactive and lively presentations. As compared to pre covid era online teaching has now become a new “Normal” of teaching. Use of Learning Management Systems by everyone gives flexibility to both teachers to upload and distribute course materials and tasks as well. It has become surprisingly easy and well organised for students to read and keep track of their course materials.

Now as the pandemic is gradually receding and life is starting to return to normal functioning. However, opportunities like blended learning in the education sector have emerged to ensure a much more practical and convenient learning experience. Blended learning is a combination of offline and online education which enables students to interact with the instructor, course material and other students both through physical classroom and online platforms. The idea of blended education makes learning easy and more productive which is why this interpretation of digital learning is promising in the long run and will become the new normal. The future of higher education has been reimagined and will depend on educators that can effectively design blended learning experiences

Things were pretty normal until the outbreak of Covid19 Pandemic and its consequent lockdowns. Days were passing amidst all the fear and tear as many of us lost our near and dear ones. At the same time we also had to be responsible and sincere towards our duties and responsibilities. It was a phase in which there was an urgency of remotely connecting a team of teachers and around a thousand students. It was a time when transition had to take place, we had to switch from conventional style of teaching, learning and assessment system to technology based platforms for the same. To keep everyone connected and motivated was certainly not a cakewalk. Thanks to technology which kept us going. Going digital was the mantra to survive in each and every respect.

Initially there was an atmosphere of chaos which gradually transformed to hope in futuristic approach. We had to learn the pragmatism of new normal. Internet served as the saviour to solve multifarious issues and challenges. Online classes, online tests and assignments connected the students with their teachers in classroom on new platforms. Learning Management System provided to us by our Reverent Principal, emerged as a boon for the teachers and students for effective teaching and learning process. It created a very positive and indelible impact among the learners. Almighty's guiding light has always been a beacon of hope for a better future of one and all.

It was on 16th April, 2021 that I was diagnosed COVID positive. The reports that came two days later showed that my whole family had fallen prey to the disease. The following week gave us the scariest experience of our lives. All of us were down with high fever, sore throat and excessive weakness. Those days, TV and newspapers were full of news about lakhs of people who succumbed to the disease worldwide. The most painful part was that almost everyday someone around us was leaving the world due to lack of awareness, medical facilities or proper treatment. In our family, we had vowed not to let the infection increase to the level that any of us had to be admitted to a hospital. After about a week, our condition started to improve, but the psychological impact was profound. We were getting deeply affected by the scenario outside. Agony was at its peak! At that point, in our best interest we decided to focus on Yoga and Meditation. I am extremely grateful to this science which helped us redeem our health and let peace fill our minds. In 15-20 days our life got its vigour back.

Whatever I experienced during those days is firmly engraved in my mind for the rest of my life. I came face to face with the hardest realities of life and understood the significance of family and well wishers. It made me more sensitive to the woes of others and filled my heart with gratitude. We are all now hale and hearty but my soul goes out to those who lost their loved ones forever. COVID changed life in many ways, physically, mentally and emotionally. Today, I get goosebumps when I recall those days but it also has a positive side to it..... My journey of self redemption started during COVID and it still continues.....

With the rise of the Corona virus pandemic in 2020, this has been an incredibly trying and difficult event for our personal lives and the world at large. What remains to be unique to me in my perspective is that it has ubiquitously affected all social classes economically and socially to some degree. In my understanding, it has been evident that the people who have the burden of being in poverty or face the social hardships of being a minority. Always face a much more difficult challenge when it comes to disease and social hardships, while the upper classes are often protected or blind to the immense tragedy of a situation like this. However, I do not argue that the people who have the benefit of wealth are struggling as much as those in poverty. I cannot begin to imagine the difficulties that families who had struggled financially prior to the Coronavirus pandemic are facing now. My heart weighs heavy in this time as I desperately hope our communities and the world find solutions to recover from the economic and social effects of this pandemic.

After the Covid-19 pandemic recedes, humanity will need to rethink their way of living. Everyone is vulnerable. The virus doesn't distinguish: the rich or the poor, the important or the ordinary people. Everyone now realizes there is no point in having money or residences in three or four different countries or on various continents in an attempt to escape the crises; they can't escape, the world becomes too small. Everyone is at risk: politicians, ministers, governors, prime ministers, presidents, princes, the rich and the poor, no one can escape the virus, and at this moment, just being able to breathe well is a blessing.

Speculating on the nature of the world after this pandemic, I whole heartedly believe our representatives of power need to make changes to our economy and healthcare system. Not only to be able to withstand future Covid-19 outbreaks, but to also serve better those in poverty that have been misrepresented for so long in the past. A strong economy is not the meaning of life and people should not be killing themselves because it collapses. Neither should families be starving or drowning in medical bills that our society is well aware are crippling high. While this pandemic may have affected me harshly because of the economic collapse, it has taught me that financial well-being is not the true meaning of life. The pandemic has revealed to me that staying together as a society and thinking beyond our own selfish desires to benefit even those you do not know, is a true purpose for life, as well as a purpose for humanity.

I knew about an epidemic but I had no clue whatsoever about a pandemic. Never came across it in my life in my limited English vocabulary. Being analytical and believing in things which I saw, I never believed in astrology. Nevertheless, if I remember in Nov 2019, we started having some major astronomical upheavals. Many celestial bodies were changing their courses and we had had the start of Covid 19. All this made me think and follow the celestial path of our planets till 2020. If at all astrology is a science which so many who practice it claim then it's true. The year 2020 had a bad start for me as I slipped in my bathroom courtesy soapy water on the floor tiles and incurred multiple fracture in my left elbow. I underwent an operation and now I have titanium screws which makes me feel artificial, synthetic and robotic. In March after Holi, we had our first lockdown which was a great experience. We did not know a thing about lockdown and it was a total knockdown for us. I started hoarding things especially for my child as I didn't want him to compromise on his dietary habits. It was lovely, nature healed. There were no honking horns, birds chirped and woke us up. It was all quiet. The sky was blue, the air was fresh and after a long time I could see butterflies flitting around in my garden and twinkling stars in the dark sky. We visited the Ganges and took a dip too. The water was surprisingly clear with no fishy stench. It was hard for me to believe and I cupped the water in my hands to believe it. The water and the air was pure. It made me wonder are we the worst creation by the almighty? We are just not in sync with nature and all we do is strut and talk about sustainable management and development in a foolhardy manner.

I loved the standstill feeling. I did all my household chores and my journey to cook delicious food began with a little help from YouTube. I immensely enjoyed tending to my only child, discovering his likes and dislikes, observing and interacting with him. My son and myself started observing the sky and their precious gems aka stars. Many astronomical upheavals were taking place which we both witnessed as thanks to the lockdown across the entire world the skies were crystal clear. As a naturalist and an environment lover I feel we have misused our resources and taken much too soon from the bountiful nature and made the earth suffer and kept our future generation on tenterhooks and given them a mangled environment. I have plenty of greenery at my home due to my mother and in my bit to keep the nature clean bought an anaerobic compost bin. The raging forest fires of Australia was also an alarm for us to take a break from reckless and lopsided development and be a bit responsible and kind to mother earth, for the wrath of nature is cruel. The pandemic which is still continuing with its first and second wave and a foreboding third wave has made us realize and come to terms with the fact that God exists. It's his way of getting equilibrium if we tend to disturb it. We as Geographers had read about Malthusian theory of population but did not witness it. Novel Corona virus made us witness it and believe in it.

150 YEARS OF THE APOSTOLIC CARMEL IN INDIA 1870-2020

A mind blooms at its best when it is nurtured at its best. On the occasion of the Hundred and fiftieth year of commemoration of the Apostolic Carmel in India, the College held an inauguration to uphold the holistic development and the motto of imparting wisdom and values.

On the occasion of the 150th year of commemoration of the Apostolic Carmel in India, the College held an inauguration of Sesquicentennial year to uphold the holistic development and the motto of imparting wisdom and values. It provided an opportunity to celebrate our past and present while thinking about where we're headed for the next 150 years.

PATNA WOMEN'S COLLEGE (Autonomous) established in 1940, is the first institution of higher learning opened to cater to the educational needs of women in Bihar. Bishop B.J. Sullivan S.J., Bishop of Patna (Founder) and Mother M. Josephine A.C. Superior General of the Apostolic Carmel named it Patna Women's College and presented it as a gift to the Women of Bihar, thereby placing at their disposal an opportunity for higher education. The College is run by the Catholic Religious Sisters of the Apostolic Carmel, an indigenous educational body founded in 1870.

The College was granted the status of Degree College in July 1941. In the year 1952, a Special Status was given by the Government of Bihar and it became a 'Constituent College' of Patna University. On 25.07.2007, the Government of Bihar, officially declared Patna Women's College as a 'Religious Minority College'.

The College whose hallmark has always been Quality and Excellence, has been accredited by NAAC with 'A' grade for three consecutive cycles with CGPA 3.51/4 in 2010 and CGPA 3.58/4 in 2015. The college also has been accorded as 'College with Potential for Excellence (CPE)' status from UGC in three phases in 2004, 2010 and 2015. The University Grants Commission (UGC) conferred Autonomous status to Patna Women's College in January, 2018.

To mark the death anniversary of Mother Veronica, foundress of the first Apostolic Carmel, on 16th November, 2020 an Incubation Centre was inaugurated at Patna Women's College by former principal Dr. Sister Doris D'Souza A.C. to promote business start-ups and entrepreneurship among the students. Sister Doris, who is the provincial superior of the Apostolic Carmel's Northern Province, also inaugurated the rooftop Benedicta Memorial Hall (Study Hall) for the students. The Central Library is fully automated and a new mezzanine floor was added to it. A new block of the Department of Education was also inaugurated on this occasion. The College is in preparation for launching the integrated B. Ed. and M. Ed. Program.

To commemorate 150 years of the Apostolic Carmel, rations, blankets, bicycles and sewing machines were distributed among the needy. These beneficiaries were mostly labourers dependent on daily business.

Patna Women's College endeavours to map excellence with a good human value system. Education is not an act of acquiring information but of learning a skill to lead life and form one's personality.

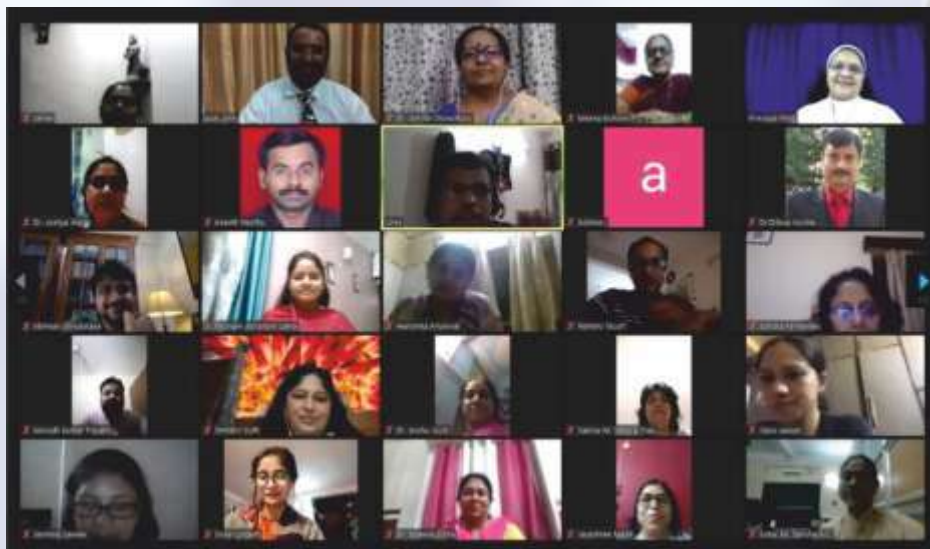

The College forges ahead to face the challenge of 21st Century, explosion of information, management of knowledge, integration of Information and Communication Technology (ICT) with education, curriculum innovation and curriculum reforms. This also includes establishing synergic partnership with industries, HEIs and R & D Organizations, developing a Research Centre and creating an enterprising spirit in students.

PWC students take up noble initiative, teach poor kids

Patna: As part of the 'Each One, Teach One' programme of the Inter College Women's Association (ICWA), students of Patna Women's College (PWC) have started imparting basic education to the inmates of the Gaighat remand home and numerous underprivileged children. Apart from teaching maths, science, English, Hindi and history they also provide computer, dance, singing, taborning, painting, yoga and skill development lessons.

According to ICWA head Sister Celine Crasta AC, the 'Each One, Teach One' programme aims to reach out to all sections of society.

"We want the remand home inmates to know how to sign or introduce themselves to others. Our main focus is on skill and personality development," Sister Celine told this newspaper.

ICWA members and PWC girls teach nearly 300 remand home inmates and slum children from 11am to 2pm every day.

Students of mass communication department (Semester VI), who have been giving computer lessons since February, are divided into two batches. Department head Minati Chakravarti said, "I am happy that my students are imparting valuable lessons to underprivileged children who usually do not have access to computers."

History (Part II) student, Harshita Kumari, who teaches the slum children, exclaimed, "They are always curious as they want to learn and explore something new every day. They are also quite sincere."

Shushanti Shekhar, a sixth semester student of the mass communication department, has put her heart and soul into the 'Each One, Teach One' programme. "Being able to share my knowledge with the slum children is no less than a privilege," she claimed.

Shushanti's classmate Smriti Raj said the kids were inquisitive and asked bright questions "if a concept is not clear to them".

One of the beneficiaries of the programme, Babu Kumar, pointed out, "The quality of education I receive here is far better than what I am taught in school. I have, therefore, never missed a single class."
